Geocaching

Urban nature Station

at

Volkspark Rehberge

Invitation

Artists of Volkspark Rehberge

Take the drawing pad and pencil case out of the box. Find a spot in the park where you feel comfortable. Sit down and look for something you would like to capture with pen and paper. It could be a view, or a single living being here in the park. Let your thoughts wander freely. Whatever it may be, draw it on paper.

Do you notice any changes in your thoughts and emotions? Surely, a connection will begin to form between you and what you are drawing. Take all the time you need.

When you are finished, sign your drawing, add the current date, and place your artwork in one of the plastic sleeves in the folder.

You are invited to browse the paintings created by other artists in this park.

Please share in our little invitation book what you have experienced during these moments and what thoughts have come to mind...

Now put everything back into the box.

Thank you for accepting our invitation and taking part in this experience. We hope you were able to take something meaningful away from it.

KulturNest e.V.
Placing Nature at the Centre of Culture in Europe

KulturNest e.V. is a Berlin-based non-profit organisation that believes in the power of bottom-up initiatives, creativity and civic participation to create meaningful social change. We design and facilitate learner-centred, non-formal educational experiences that connect people with one another, with nature and with their own capacity to shape the world around them. Our interdisciplinary team of artists, forest therapists, facilitators, youth workers and other practitioners works collaboratively with communities to create empowering spaces for learning, co-creation, wellbeing and social connection.